

JUDGE JERE WILSON.
(Principal Counsel for Admiral Schley)
Who died suddenly in Washington last week.

BREVITIES OF FUN.

A Bald Assertion. — Barber — "Your hair will be gray if it keeps on." Seantylocks — "Well, I hope it will keep on." — Baltimore World.

She — "Her husband is an engineer." He — "Civil, I suppose." She — "Well, barely so. They've been married more than a year, I believe." — Philadelphia Press.

"Why, Flitters, how thin you are! Been sick?" "N—no; but I paid a week's board in advance at a place where they don't give us anything but 'health food.'" — Philadelphia Bulletin.

"That's right, James," said the teacher during the natural history lesson, "and how do you know man is an animal?" "Because I often hear mom call pop a 'beast.'" — Philadelphia Times.

Fond Parent — "It is very cruel of you, Bobby, to catch flies and put them on spiders' webs." Bobby — "What for? Does the spider eat too much and get sick?" — Town and Country.

"Tell me," he sighed, "tell me, 'tell me, beautiful maiden, what is in your heart?" Miss Henrietta Bean, of Boston, gave him a look of icy disdain, and then vouchsafed the monosyllabic reply: "Blood." — Baltimore American.

Riggs — "Strange how eminent authorities differ. Now, Dr. Bolus disapproves of automobiling, while Dr. Kutz strongly favors it." Briggs — "My dear man, Dr. Kutz is a specialist in surgery and Dr. Bolus is not, that's why." — Stray Stories.

Burroughs — "There's a fellow who makes more work and trouble for his friends than anyone else I know." Ascum — "Who? Tytelist? Why, I can hardly believe that of him." Burroughs — "You've never tried to borrow a dollar from him, I guess." — Catholic Standard.

PUCKERED BRAINS.

Biggest Head Does Not Always Show the Greatest Intelligence.

Although investigation shows that small-headed men are quite as clever as large-headed men, people fondly cling to the superstition that to distinguish one's self it is necessary to have a big head. It is really a fallacy, as anatomists can easily prove.

What makes you a man of superior intellect is not a large brain, but a brain with many folds—or, as they are scientifically called, convolutions.

The reason is this: The brain consists of two substances, the dense white matter and the softer gray matter. The white matter is inside, and the gray matter covers it, just as the rind covers an orange. Now, the white matter is merely the termination of the nervous telegraphic system of the body, and it is the gray covering matter which thinks, writes, makes poetry, forms judgments, etc.

Obviously, the more gray matter you have the greater is your intellect. To provide for a large expanse of gray matter without increasing the size of the skull to an inconvenient extent, nature has adopted an ingenious plan. It has pushed in the surface of the brain as you might push in a mass of dough with your fingers.

In the lower animals these trenches are few and shallow. In the apes they are a little deeper and more numerous still. — London Answers.

Defoe was born and Milton was buried in St. Giles, Cripplegate, and their busts have just been presented to the Cripplegate institute by Passmore Edwards. The name of this ancient London parish, by the way, is a philological curiosity. It has nothing to do with cripples, but represents the Anglo-Saxon "crepel geat," or covered way, which was used as a military approach to the city walls. Interesting relics of this ancient structure were discovered during recent excavations.

The Engineer

Learning from the cab window does more with his ears than his eyes. The "rumble and grumble and roar" of his engine are to him articulate speech, and a false note in that jumble of sounds would catch his ear as quickly as a discord would strike the ear of the leader of an orchestra.

He thinks more of his engine than himself. That is why he neglects to notice symptoms which are full of warning. The foul tongue, the bitter taste, sour risings, and undue fullness after eating are but symptoms of dyspepsia or some form of disease involving the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. In time the heart, liver, lungs, or other organs are involved and the engineer has to lay off.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and builds up the body with sound healthy flesh.

"I used ten bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and several vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' a year ago this spring, and have had no trouble with indigestion since," writes Mr. W. T. Thompson, of Townsend, Broadwater Co., Montana. "Words fail to tell how thankful I am for the relief, as I had suffered so much and it seemed that the doctors could do me no good. I got down in weight to 135 pounds, and was not able to work at all. Now I weigh 160 and can do a day's work on the farm. I have recommended your medicine to several, and shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Pierce and his medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

THE PERSONAL ELEMENT.

Has to Be Taken Into Consideration When Aiming at Success.

"Personality," as it is called, is a thing apart; a light, that cannot be hidden. It is difficult to describe, being in its nature variable. Often it is composed of one part talent and two parts character, and he who has it may, in spite of other deficiencies, command success.

Large successes are attainable by the union of aptitude and concentration of purpose, coincident with opportunity; the meeting of the man and the occasion; the suiting of the word to the action, the action to the word; self-confidence; unflinching courage; absolute probity. — Henry Watterson, in Success.

A City of Padlocks.

Irkutsk, Siberia, is a city of padlocks. There are more padlocks on the shutters and doors of an Irkutsk shop than can be found in an English city of 200,000. There are as many as three padlocks on some shop doors, and every lower-story shutter bears from one to five. The padlock weighs from one pound to 15 pounds. The popular size is 5 pounds and 2½ inches thick.

EMBALMED MILK.

Becoming One of the Serious Problems of the Modern City.

"Embalmed milk is rapidly developing into one of the more serious problems of the modern city," said an observant citizen to a writer for the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "and, judging from the amount of space devoted to the question in agricultural and dairy journals, persons engaged in the dairy business are fully alive to the importance of the matter. I notice that in Chicago the discovery has been made that the milk furnished the public institutions is liberally embalmed with formalin, whatever that is. I do not know exactly the process, and in fact, never heard of embalmed milk until recently. But there seems to be such a thing. The babies, I guess, have more at stake than the grown persons, because of the extensive use of the bottle. Efforts have been making for some time in the larger cities to get purer milk for the babies, and many methods have been resorted to along this line. Doctors advised for awhile that the milk be boiled before using, but it was found that this would not do. Babies were about to starve to death on sterilized milk. It was death by poison on the one hand and death by starvation on the other. But this is simply one of the minor phases of the milk problem. Clean, pure, healthy milk is one of the crying needs of the hour. The public health depends very largely upon a solution of the milk problem. The tuberculous cow, too, must come in for consideration when the milk problem is discussed. I was talking to a veterinary surgeon a few days ago, and he said there was no question about the claim that diseases are frequently transmitted by the use of impure, unwholesome milk. The cow may be in a feverish condition, in which event the disease may be transmitted to the person using the milk. By actual experiment it has been found that ticks transmit fevers from one cow to another, and it is equally as well settled that the unhealthy condition of the cow may be bequeathed to members of the human family who happen to use the milk. Hence the milk problem has become a question of much concern, and physicians and health officers generally throughout the country are making every effort to solve the problem. Pure milk is the demand in all the large cities at present, but what method will finally be hit upon cannot be guessed at this time."

UNCLE SI'S MISTAKE.

Got Into Trouble by Making Display of His Fine Feelings.

"No, Mandy," said Uncle Si, "I'll never try to follow the example of a great man again."

"What's the matter now, Silas?" she asked.

"Well," he said, "while I was up to the city yesterday there was a funeral procession come along. It happened that it passed where Stubbs, the great writer, was standing, an' he took off his hat an' stood with bowed head."

"Well, that showed what fine feelings he has, Silas."

"Course it did, an' the people all said: 'Ain't it beautiful and what a noble man, an' the mourners in the backs cried wuss 'an ever. An' it did look purty, so when another procession passed I stepped out in front and took off my hat."

"You blamed fool!"

How to Flatter.

The tribute of unexpected praise is more grateful to a person than the reward for which he works hardest and is most confident. It discovers to him new and pleasing attributes. It has all the zest and relish that the particular, always has more than the general. And, besides, for the person who happens to light upon some little favorite trick of individuality and to notice and to comment upon it the reward is great. Such a flatterer is in the heart of the flattered one, throned with the authority of discernment; he is considered forever after as a critic of the first importance. Everyone has a hobby, an idiosyncrasy, visible or invisible; it is the art of the flatterer to discover it and his science to use it to his ends.
